

SPOONER HERE THIS EVENING!

Senior Senator of Wisconsin To Talk on National and State Politics.

RECEPTION AT THE MYERS HOTEL

Address Will Be at the Opera House This Evening at Eight O'clock--Many Here From Throughout the County.

Senator Spooner speaks here this evening. From all parts of the county visitors have flocked to the city to hear him discuss the situation in Wisconsin as it exists. Senator Spooner is one of the great men of the republican party in the country. He has been vilified by articles written for the purpose of aiding the administration forces. He has answered these insults in a quiet dignified manner. He is the leading exponent of republicanism in Wisconsin and what he has to say tonight will be heard with much interest by his audience. Senator Spooner commands respect. He receives respect wherever he goes. No man dare insult him to his face but behind his back innuendoes have been cast at his republicanism by administration leaders. When confronted with the facts they have managed to crawl out of the hole they are in a most humble manner. He was returned to the United States senate by the last legislature in the face of apparently overwhelming odds with but one dissenting vote. He is a man of the people and for the people. There has never been a Wisconsin United States senator who has brought so much honor to the state as has Senator Spooner. Elected to the senate for the first time during a democratic landslide he has carried the banner of republicanism far and today ranks as the leader of the highest governing body of the United States. Senator Spooner is a Wisconsin man. He is an old soldier and has fought for the republican party since its formation. Senator Spooner is serving his third term as United States senator. He has, three times received the highest gift that the voters of Wisconsin can tender him. As a man, as a citizen, as a statesman, he has few peers in the country. Senator Spooner will meet his friends at the Myers Hotel shortly after seven on this evening. The public is cordially invited to be present. The address will be given at the Myers opera-house at eight this evening. S. C. Cobb, superintendent of the Jamesville Machine works is to act as president of the meeting. While in the city Senator Spooner will be the guest of Hon. Ogden H. Fethers.

Senator John C. Spooner.

VIEWS SITUATION WITH ELEMENT OF ALARM TODAY

Staff Correspondent Writes From Milwaukee, of the Situation as It Exists.

(By Staff Correspondent.) Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 8.—One immediate result of the supreme court finding in the Follette case is that the La Follette men have formulated a demand which is to be sent to Chairman Cortelyou that they be recognized in the naming of a successor to the late National Committee men H. C. Payne. They base the claim on the ground that it has been proven that their wing of the party is "regular," that unquestionably it has with it the greater percentage of voters, and is therefore entitled to recognition.

It is understood that Chairman Connor of the La Follette state central committee already has notified Mr. Cortelyou, that they would demand representation, but he neither admits nor denies this when asked the question point blank yesterday morning.

Connor Aspires to Place. He was quite willing, however, to say that they believed such a claim to be but just and that their committee certainly ought to be taken into consideration in the naming of a new committeeman. It is said that Chairman Connor has aspirations in that direction himself, and it is believed that La Follette would choose either Connor or former Governor W. D. Hoard.

Of course, the choice will have to be made by La Follette, and no one of his followers expects to get anything political without the knowledge and consent of the chief.

Indications are now not wanting that the contest for legislative supremacy has advanced to that stage where the La Follette men think they see a chance of having control and being able to elect their own successor to Senator Quarles.

Many Want Quarles' Seat. Irving L. Throck of Superior, speaker of the last assembly and a most devoted La Follette adherent, has reached that point where he allows himself to be mentioned for the place. Chairman Connor and W. D. Hoard both have one eye on the senatorship while the other is busy with the national committee. An "Uncle Isaac" Stephenson of Marinette is always a man to be reckoned with when the senatorship is mentioned.

However, the chance of any man being elected senator because he is an adherent of La Follette is not bright enough to be blinding at this time. It looks very much now as though the legislature would be so divided that the democrats will hold the balance of power and be able to dictate the choice of a successor to Senator Quarles.

he acceded to their wishes, and he did so only after they had shown that they had supported him and explained that he was the only man that could fill the position.

As for his plan of campaign, nothing will be definitely settled until after next Monday, when the party managers will meet again in Milwaukee.

Time Short for Campaign. He said that owing to the limited time between now and election it would be impossible to thoroughly canvass the entire state but he would cover as much of the state as possible. He feels certain that he has a righteous cause, and that he will receive the votes of all those who desire a representative government, believing that the administration of affairs during the two terms he served the people of Wisconsin would be a guarantee that if elected they could expect an administration with the least possible expense to the taxpayers.

Mr. Scofield declares in favor of a railroad commission elected by the people, objecting to giving the governor power to appoint the majority of the members.

Chicago Chronicle. Edward Scofield, who has been chosen by the "stalwart" republicans of Wisconsin as their candidate for governor in place of S. A. Cook, withdrawn, has been governor of the state already, says the Chicago Chronicle.

His official record is excellent and he enjoys the confidence and respect of the people of the state irrespective of party. Mr. Scofield enters the race from a sense of duty, to his party and the state, and he does so in the confident expectation that he will be elected.

When such men as Scofield, the two United States senators, Representative Babcock and scores of republicans besides who deservedly enjoy the confidence and esteem of the people and are acknowledged to be among the best men in public life in the state are arrayed against the La Follette faction it looks to unbiased outsiders as though there must be strong reasons for pursuing his course they have entered upon. It is not easy to believe that such a man would persist in a course which must be injurious, not to say disastrous, to the party if they were not convinced that the only alternative—withdrawal from the contest and support of the La Follette ticket—would in the end prove even more injurious to the party and the state.

They are not known as men of the ruler-ruler kind, and they are too good politicians to let merely personal considerations or resentments stand in the way of party harmony. While the party division is not likely to result in disadvantage to the republican national ticket, it is deleterious in many ways. It affects upon social relations, promises to be unfortunate, and it may result in the temporary loss of a republican United States senator, and perhaps of some republican strength in the house. It is to be hoped that the disturbing elements and causes of dissension will be speedily eliminated.

Head of Chicago announcing the death of her husband on the tracks in the northern part of the city Thursday, William Farmer received a special delivery letter asking for more particular information as to the accident. The remains have been shipped to Chicago for burial.

AWFUL RACE IS TAKING PLACE

Vanderbilt Cup Is Being Raced for by Sixteen Automobiles—Much Interest Shown.

(Special by Scripps-McLae.) Westbury, N. Y., Oct. 8.—Seventeen automobiles started on a three-hundred mile race for the Vanderbilt cup at six o'clock this morning. A hundred thousand people witnessed the race. All were off by six-thirty. The Arcenz Mercedes overturned and the two occupants were badly injured. Five other cars broke down. After three hours work, the Frenchman, Tesse, ninety horsepower Panhard was in the lead, and reeled off mile after mile at less than a minute.

Heath, the leader, finished the sixth round at 10:09:16. He was then ahead of any European record. The net speed has been 57 miles an hour. The riding panhard, Levasser, having an accident, looks to be the winner. Gabriel and Clement are the nearest competitors.

When Heath completed the repairs to his machine he set out to recover the lead from Clement, who was driving the Clement machine. When the last round began Clement was still leading by a minute and fourteen seconds.

Tesse had trouble in the fourth round. He lost his lead to Heath. The latter covered the first half of the distance in two hours sixteen minutes and thirty-two seconds. George Arcenz, Jr., millionaire, whose machine overturned, was removed to the Nassau hospital and is recovering. His machinist, Paul Musel, injured his skull and is believed to be dying. Vanderbilt's car was ruled out because he made a flyup start.

Musel died at noon. Heath wins by one minute twenty-eight seconds; Clement is second, Heath finished at 1:08:45; Clement at 1:20:13. Heath's corrected time is 5 hours 26 minutes and 46 seconds, an average of over a mile a minute outside of "controls." He broke all the world records. He is an American and drove a French Panhard.

WOULD CONTROL SUBLIME PORTE

NATIONS ARE TO CURB THE SULTAN

Armenians Look to America to Aid Them in Their Struggle Against the Sublime Porte and His Minions.

Boston, Mass., Oct. 8.—Through a special committee on the Armenian question the international peace congress appealed to the President of the United States to make use of his best means to put a stop to the "terrible sufferings of the various peoples of the Turkish empire."

The resolutions offered suggested an international conference intended to devise steps to control the authority of the Sublime Porte. Dr. Melikoff, the sole Armenian delegate at the conference, made an earnest appeal that the atrocities committed in his country be brought to an end, and stated that he looked to America for relief.

Denounce Oppression of Jews.

Herbert Burrows of England vehemently attacked Great Britain, Russia and Turkey. He condemned his own country for its policy in Tibet, Russia, for its treatment of the Jews, and Turkey for the Armenian atrocities. If anything, he declared the Kishenev massacre was worse than anything that has ever happened in Armenia.

Other delegates engaged in the discussion, whereupon the chair urged the congress to refrain from remarks of a controversial character.

The Armenian resolutions were referred to the general committee on questions of the day.

King Leopold Is Assailed.

King Leopold of Belgium was assailed for his policy as sovereign of the Congo Free State by B. T. Morel of England, who charged that the ruler was personally responsible for the cruelties practiced upon the natives in the terrible endeavors of monopolistic commercial organizations to obtain from the country all the ivory and rubber possible. The Rev. W. M. Morrison, for seven years a missionary there, indorsed this view of the case, and added his protest.

Plan of Combination.

The first subject taken up was the elaborate plan of organizing the nations into a positive peace making union, as favored in resolutions by the Danish Peace Society, the Universal Peace Union of the United States, and other organizations. The memorial was read by Mrs. Belva A. Lockwood of Washington.

The preamble points out that there is no concert of action proposed, or feasible plan, whereby the machinery of the Hague convention may be put in force to prevent war where war is threatened.

The resolutions were unanimously adopted.

Universal Peace Prayer.

The committee on propaganda proposed to establish in all leading cities of the world branches of the Borno peace bureau; to appeal to the world for $7,000,000; to be spent for literature and lectures; to refer to a later congress the proposal for a universal alphabet and language; and that a universal peace prayer be formulated by all religious denominations that "God will enable the nations of the earth to settle peaceably their disputes."

The final recommendation was one choosing Lieke as the place for the peace congress of 1906.

Denounces Invasion of China.

Dr. Yamei Kin of China denounced the invasion of her country by other peoples. President G. Stanley Hall of Clark university contended that the weaker peoples should be developed intellectually by the stronger nations, instead of being made the subject of commercial advancement.

William Randall Cramer, M. P., founder of the Interparliamentary union, in an address on "The Progress of the Peace Movement in Europe," severely criticized Joseph Chamberlain for his "propaganda of empire" and characterized him as "the arch enemy of peace in Europe."

LAST MEETING OF CONFERENCE HELD

ROUTINE BUSINESS TRANSACTED AND OFFICERS REELECTED.

PREACH MANY GOOD SERMONS

Report of President Contains History of the English Lutheran Church in the Northwest.

Last evening's services at the St. Peter's church in the city ended the third meeting of the Eastern Conference of the English Lutheran Synod of the Northwest. The meetings were enjoyed by all those who attended from the city as well as by the ministers and lay delegates from the different churches.

The program for yesterday, afternoon was as follows:

Reports from the field.
Model Meeting of a Pastor's Aid and Missionary Society—Rev. W. K. Frick, D. D., Church of the Redeemer, Milwaukee.

Discussion of Principles and Methods.
All those who were present gained a clearer idea of the work that the church is doing in the different cities and towns in which congregations are not formed and from the discussion of the principles and methods of the denomination each one gleaned the reason for the English Lutheran church's rapid advance in the last few years.

Evening Services.
In the evening the conference was closed with the following program:

Vesper.
A Recent Tour Through the Pacific Synod—Rev. A. C. Andra, Western Field Secretary, Chicago.
Our Theological Seminary and Church Expansion—Rev. Prof. G. H. Gerberding, D. D., Chicago Theological Seminary.
It will be remembered the Rev. Andra was instrumental in the organization of the local church and for many Sunday preached in the rooms which were used as a place of meeting before the new building was purchased. In his address Rev. Gerberding explained how the Chicago Theological seminary, in producing pastors for the congregations almost as rapidly as the new congregations are formed, is making this advancement possible.

History of Church.

President Rev. W. K. Frick, D. D., of Milwaukee, in his report prefaced his remarks with a brief history of the English Lutheran movement. He said in part: "In 1831 Dr. Passavant was at the head of the home mission committee of the General Council, a body made of equal portions of German, Swedish and English churches, included in the oldest synod of the land, that of Pennsylvania, founded in 1748, and the strongest and most conservative English Lutheran churches, those of Pennsylvania and New York. It was felt that the time was ripe for a forward movement in the northwest and the Twin cities of Minnesota were selected, partly because there was a general council synod there, the Swedish Augustana, and partly because these places were the booming cities of that period. Dr. Passavant purchased a lot and moved to it an old Swedish church.

There Dr. Trabert of Lebanon, Pa., in January of 1833 began St. John's, Minneapolis, which he organized in early summer with seven members. He also worked at St. Paul and Red Wing. Rev. A. J. Haupt, the president of the synod, carried the St. Paul work through the period of organization; with not over a dozen members the purchase of a lot was made on which was placed a little school building that served as a church until in 1835, when Memorial church was built. Fargo, N. D., was occupied in 1836 by Father Ulery and Dr. Gerberding, long the popular "bishop" of the Red River valley.

First in Wisconsin

In the fall of 1833 the first work in Wisconsin was done at Milwaukee, the result of which was the formation of the congregation of the Church of the Redeemer. Duluth also was occupied at about this same time, but as yet these English churches were mostly independent. St. John's church of Minneapolis, the Memorial of St. Paul and St. Paul's of Red Wing were in the Swedish synod; also Pastors Trabert, Haupt and Frick, but all other pastors and churches remained outside for the Swedish synod had no attractions for the German and Norwegian elements of the congregations, and not very much more. The Anglican Swedes made an effort was made to form an English conference or mission district within the Minnesota conference or Augustana synod. A committee was appointed on which several English ministers were put with Swedish pastors and laymen. A meeting was held and there movement stopped. It would have been a most fortunate thing for the English church had the plan carried but the committee was never called on to report and the Swedes made no effort to deal with the English question for ten years more. That left the English free to follow their own guidance and under the Rev. Passavant, a missionary convention was held in old St. John's, Minneapolis, in Sept., 1851, the 24th anniversary day of the landing of Henry Meadler, the first English pastor of the Lutheran church in America, at Charleston. The English Evangelical Lutheran Synod of the Northwest was organized in Memorial church, St. Paul. Dr. Trabert and St. John's could not then separate from Augustana but did later, as also did the Red Wing church. In fact, only Memorial church and Pastors Haupt and Frick came from that synod, the other six congregations and seven pastors coming from other sources, so that the Augustana never lost any but these ministers and church. At that time there were but 354 communicants and now the church has so rapidly risen that there are 18 pastors, 22 congregations, and 3,504 communicants.

St. Peter's church in this city has been organized for but eighteen months and during that time the congregation at the Sunday services has grown to number from a hundred and fifty to two hundred and a church building has also been purchased. Reverend A. C. Andra of Chicago, the western field secretary, organized the church, Rev. Christy acting as pastor during his last year in Chicago seminary, and was ordained last June, immediately after his graduation he took charge of the Janesville church.

DISCONTENT MAY WRECK THE TEAM

University of Wisconsin Football
Coaches Are Up Against a Hard Proposition.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 8.—More trying circumstances than those confronting the coaches of the Wisconsin football team this fall would be difficult for one unacquainted with the situation at Madison to imagine. Disgruntled candidates averring that they are being sidetracked for favors, lack of sufficient material to form a decent second eleven, a mighty debt upon the athletic association producing a scarcity of supplies and a limited training table, an adverse faculty preventing the entrance of stars, though insufficiently prepared athletes into the university, and open charges that professionalism abounds in the methods of at-circumstance in reducing the number of players.

The charge of professionalism in football is made in the official paper of the university and is based largely upon the fact that the place is annually canvassed for easy jobs for favorite athletes to obtain their college support, to be passed out by the coaches as patronage to athletes. It is a fact not well known that more than half the members of the football team have secured salaries placed in the capital building here. During the summer some $3,500 was disbursed to pay athletes for improving the university athletic field and now Architect J. T. W. Jennings says the work is a hotel and the money paid out for it wasted.

The work was done under a contract held by George R. Kenzie, the celebrated Wisconsin distance runner, and called for an expenditure of $2,300, but went much higher on account of "extras" not provided for in the contract. This sort of thing is called dishonest professionalism by the leaders who edit the university paper, and while the direct attack seems to be aimed at Manager Kilpatrick and Crew Coach O'Dea, the two remaining professional coaches, the painful effect is heavy upon Curle and Cochems, who are graduate coaches although salaried. Meanwhile the football team remains with poor chances of coming out better than close to the tail of the western intercollegiate procession.

THE JANESVILLE BASEBALL TEAM

The above cut of the victorious Janesville base ball team renews memories of past days when Janesville had teams in the field that held as good victories as the present team. This year's team has played twenty games and won sixteen of them and lost four. One was when the ball was batted over a fence and a home run resulted for the opposing team. During the season just past it has played three games with Port Washington, winning two of them and losing one. It lost one game with the Gunthers of Chicago but won from the Marquettes of the same city. The Spauldings carried off a hard fought victory and the Rockford Three team lost both the games it played. The Rockford city team did not fare any better and had two defeats scored against them. Beloit city team lost its game and the Clinton Maroons early in the season pounded out a victory. The Brevets of Rockford went home sadder but wiser men and Madison did likewise. Elgin was unable to keep them from winning and both Watkesh and the Milwaukee Brewers lost gracefully. The team will be reorganized next spring and kept in the field. It has made a good reputation the past season and may well claim the championship of southern Wisconsin. Reading the picture from left to right the players are: Pye, catcher; Sullivan, 3rd base; Palmer, pitcher; Ruhland, pitcher; Newman, 1st base; Second row: Allen, pitcher; P. F. Broughton, short stop; Perring, right field; Blakeley, left field; Cal Broughton, catcher. The lower row is: Robinson, center field; C. F. Cole, captain and manager.

TOBACCO MARKET

DECIDEDLY QUIET

Little Buying Being Done—Fisher & Fisher Make Purchase in Dane County.

Tobacco—half head.

Sales of the new tobacco crop are few and the market is very quiet just at present. Although the buyers are riding about in the country a little, few contracts have been closed.

There seems to be a disposition on the part of many dealers to wait until the price is set by the trust buyers. Low grades and stripping stock from old leaf is being sought after at a low price and all old leaf is selling fairly well.

All danger of shed burn has passed and the weather now is very favorable for curing this last summer's early cut crop.

Fisher & Fisher of this city have purchased during the last week one hundred and twenty-five acres of the 1904 crop in Dane county. Other sales and purchases are M. F. Green, 5 cars of old goods; Geo. H. Rumrill, sells 4500 of 1900-02 and buys 3 cars at Madison and 1 at Stoughton.

Low grade leaf, Fisher & Fisher 10 cars of 1902 and L. B. Carle & Son 2400 of 1901-02 and buy 2600 of the same year's goods.

tracting athletes—these are the elements that face Head Coach Arthur H. Curtis and Assistant Coach Cochems and seem to assure that the development of a football team of strength sufficient to make even a respectable showing against Chicago, Minnesota and Michigan is an utter impossibility. The situation is the talk of the university community and the discouragement of the coaches. It seems the more remarkable in view of the fact that six weeks ago, before the training season had commenced, there were enumerated some 40 football players of skill and experience who were then available for the eleven and promised that Wisconsin would at least hold her own against the teams of Stagg, Yost and Williams, if not win the western intercollegiate gridiron championship. The fact that Captain Bush, Berke, Stromquist and Franke are on the hospital list is a circumstance of insignificance compared with the other elements of the situation. Friends of the coaches, who know how carefully they planned for this season and how faithfully and hard they have worked thus far express sympathy but offer little by way of suggesting remedies.

A mass meeting of students will probably be held early in the coming week, at which the coaches will tell how useless it is to hold the daily practice unless enough candidates come out to make a second eleven strong enough to give the varsity team vigorous opposition. There have been as many as 25 men out some days trying for the team, but whenever a leading candidate has been put on the second eleven for a few nights it seems that he has become discouraged or disgruntled, charged favoritism on the part of the coaches or found another reason for running away from the campus. Much of this had feeling was caused by the coaches placing on the first eleven star men "attracted" to the university before they had passed the entrance examinations. Nearly a dozen of these failed to enter the university because the faculty would not let down the bars of matriculation requirements and when they left the football squad many of the students about whose entrance there had been no question had discontinued training and refused to return.

travelling athletes—these are the elements that face Head Coach Arthur H. Curtis and Assistant Coach Cochems and seem to assure that the development of a football team of strength sufficient to make even a respectable showing against Chicago, Minnesota and Michigan is an utter impossibility. The situation is the talk of the university community and the discouragement of the coaches. It seems the more remarkable in view of the fact that six weeks ago, before the training season had commenced, there were enumerated some 40 football players of skill and experience who were then available for the eleven and promised that Wisconsin would at least hold her own against the teams of Stagg, Yost and Williams, if not win the western intercollegiate gridiron championship. The fact that Captain Bush, Berke, Stromquist and Franke are on the hospital list is a circumstance of insignificance compared with the other elements of the situation. Friends of the coaches, who know how carefully they planned for this season and how faithfully and hard they have worked thus far express sympathy but offer little by way of suggesting remedies.

A mass meeting of students will probably be held early in the coming week, at which the coaches will tell how useless it is to hold the daily practice unless enough candidates come out to make a second eleven strong enough to give the varsity team vigorous opposition. There have been as many as 25 men out some days trying for the team, but whenever a leading candidate has been put on the second eleven for a few nights it seems that he has become discouraged or disgruntled, charged favoritism on the part of the coaches or found another reason for running away from the campus. Meanwhile the football team remains with poor chances of coming out better than close to the tail of the western intercollegiate procession.

It has schools, missions and hospitals in Africa, India, China, Japan, Turkey and many other countries, from Alaska to South Australia. Congregationalism has schools and missions in Porto Rico, Cuba, the Philippines, also among the Chinese, Indians and mountain whites in the city slums and in the newly settled portions of our own country. All the missionary and educational work of the denomination all over the world is reviewed, reports are received and plans for progress are made at this National Council, which occupies seven days.

Church in This Country.

There are nearly 6,000 Congregational churches in the United States and they have about 700,000 members of churches and the same number of children in the Sunday schools. Congregationalism has always paid particular attention to education and has many colleges, academies and seminaries in the country, the most prominent of which is Yale University. The leaders of these educational institutions are present at the National Council and add greatly to its power and interest. The council plans this year to pay particular attention, not so much to theories of religion, as to what is actually being done and to the question of how more and better work can be done for the kingdom of God of which the church is simply one of the many parts.

REV. DENISON AT DES MOINES

GOES AS STATE DELEGATE TO NATIONAL COUNCIL

OF CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

No Power is Vested in This Council,
But Proceedings Have Great Influence.

As a delegate from the state of Wisconsin Rev. Denison leaves Monday for Des Moines, Iowa, to attend the National Council of the Congregational churches in the United States. To be thus chosen from the ministers of the whole state and to act in the capacity of a delegate is no small honor. The council which convenes Thursday next is made up of the representatives from the Congregational churches of all the states and territories in the Union and meet every three years. In the Congregational denominations all authority is vested in the people themselves and each church has liberty to make its own rules, select its minister and carry on its work in what seems to it the best way.

E. H. Harriman and his associates are negotiating for the control of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad in a manner similar to the acquisition of the Burlington by the Hill transcontinental lines. Within the last few days Mr. Harriman has secured between 75,000 and 100,000 shares of St. Paul stock, and this, together with his previous holdings, say railroad men, will almost give him control. Mr. Harriman, it is said, will continue to purchase as much outstanding stock as he possibly can, and unless he is balked in his efforts by the present controlling interests, the early acquisition of St. Paul by Mr. Harriman seems inevitable. Should the outcome of the pending Northern Securities company litigation be adverse to the Harriman, the Northern Pacific-Great Northern-Burlington combination would continue a menace to the Union Pacific. Mr. Harriman is getting a grip on St. Paul in order to protect Union Pacific if the necessity arises.

The Pere Marquette has received a consignment of the new equipment which has been ordered for use on the line between Chicago and Grand Rapids. Included in the order are two new sleeping cars, each of sixteen sections, and provided with electric light and gas. In each berth there are two electric reading lamps which are sunk in the paneling in the side of the car and which are exposed and put into operation by means of electric buttons. The floor of the car is concrete, which in matter of sanitation and strength is said to be a great improvement. The interior is of mahogany and the upholstery is green plush.

The Big Four is spending $2,000,000 to shorten eighteen miles of good track to the company's main line between Lawrenceburg and Sunman, Ind. This stretch of road, costing as it will more than $11,000,000 per mile, is said to be the most expensive in the world outside of mountainous country. The new roadbed was obtained by cutting down great bluffs and hauling them away.

Within the city limits of Chicago there are 300 or more grade crossings between steam and electric railroads, and Engineer F. G. Ewald of the state railroad and warehouse commission has recommended that all be protected in order to prevent further fatalities.

The Shopiere and Janesville town baseball teams will engage in a battle royal at Shopiere next Sunday when the "rubber" game will be played off by the rival teams. Each has won a game, the last being taken by Shopiere last Sunday, and a purse of $20 has been hung up for the deciding contest.

Wendt and Breesy will be in the points for Janesville while Manley and Moo will constitute the Shopiere battery. Manley is a coming pitcher, being pronounced by Aiken, the crack Janesville twirler, the best pitcher whom he has opposed this year. Manley is but 17 years of age and has already made an enviable reputation. Last Sunday he struck out fifteen Janesville batters and almost secured a shutout.

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

Young man, what makes the nation great?

Not man nor boundary nor state,
Not argosies that sweep the sea—
'Tis none of these that make us free;
'Tis none of these that keep us grand,
What is it makes and builds the land?
'Tis YOU!

Young man, who is the country's guide?

Who stands her guard on every side?
No men of war that ride the foam,
Nor mountains piercing heaven's dome,
Nor rivers rushing to the strand,
Who has the sure and guiding hand?
'Tis YOU!

Young man, who is the nation's guard?

Not sullen gates with cannon barred,
Nor harbor mouth or mountain pass,
Nor fortresses where warriors mass,
Whom does the nation choose for guard?
Who o'er her fate keeps watch and ward?
'Tis YOU!

back in the early days, and the grandfathers of the present generation are free to declare that the boys of today are a hot house production. To their notion the old weather-beaten school house, with its short winter session, was a better academy for practical learning than the high school and university of today. They believe in self-made men, and are strong in the conviction that the more difficult the struggle and the more rigid the discipline, the better will be the product.

While there is force in the argument it is one sided. The fact can not be ignored that the schools and churches are not only the advance guard of civilization but of progress as well.

The young men of today are confronted with a different problem, than were the boys of 50 years ago. With the development of the country has come the development of opportunities, and more is demanded of the boys of today than ever before.

The schools are in keeping with the progress of the age, and while it may be a waste of time and energy to keep a boy in school against his will, after he is sixteen years of age, and while a majority of the boys may leave school at about this age, this is no argument against the school.

A little observation will convince the grandfathers even that, other things being equal, the boy with well developed brain and well stored mind, is better equipped for the race of life than the boy who is destitute of these accomplishments.

The time to stock the brain with knowledge and the mind with information is during the formative years of life. These years are all too brief, and they never come but once. Conditions are changing rapidly and the demand for young men who possess ability to think as well as to work is constantly on the increase.

There are a number of semi-professions which were practically unknown a few years ago. Electrical and mining engineering belong to this class, and the young man who gets to the front in either department must possess a knowledge of science.

A man who was a constructing engineer in the employ of the Allis Chalmers company, said to his oldest son when he graduated from the high school six years ago:

"My boy, I want you to take a course in electrical engineering." The boy consented, spent two years at the university and two years at Cornell. When he graduated two years ago he went to work in the shops at a dollar a day. It was soon discovered that he possessed a brain as well as a pair of hands and promotion followed rapidly. Today, at 23 years of age, he is an erector of electric engines, at a salary of $150 a month, directing a force of men, and doing intelligent work.

He owes his position to his mental equipment.

A few years ago a young man from Rock county was sent to the state university. He was a Lake Koshkonong boy, and the old home, two miles from school, offered more attractions for duck shooting than for an education. The boy grew to young manhood with but a limited knowledge of books, but he could handle a gun like an expert.

It occurred to his people one day that while duck shooting was all right for a pass time that between the carp and game wardens the outlook was not encouraging for a life contract, and so they said to the boy: "You must go to Madison and study engineering." He rebelled, but was finally persuaded to go and after a few months became fascinated with his study.

After a short course he entered the shops of the Milwaukee road and devoted his leisure to the study of electrical work. Today he is recognized as an expert and is in the employ of the Waldorf Astoria as chief engineer, directing a force of 120 men on a $5,000 salary. That pays better than duck shooting in Wisconsin, under present restrictions, at least.

The little poem to young men, suggesting responsibility and opportunity is true to the letter, but the manner in which opportunity shall be recognized and responsibilities met, depends upon the young man himself. The home may be ideal, and the school the best in the land, and the boy turn out a failure.

The average boy is neither a thinker nor a close observer. He is satisfied to have others think and plan for him. This is true, not only of the boys who abandon school at an early age, but also of a large class who graduate from colleges and universities.

It is estimated that 85 per cent. of the young men in the higher institutions of learning are dependents. That means that a large percentage of graduates are turned out into life without appreciating the value of an education which cost them nothing but a little personal effort.

Better for the country, and infinitely better for the boy, if work and sacrifice were the requisites. This is distinctly the young man's age. They are in demand at the front in every calling and a guarantee of good position is promised to every boy of clean morals, who will prepare himself to meet responsibility.

It ought to be an inspiring incentive to the young men of America. A trip to the Philippines is no more of a journey today than was a trip from New York to Chicago half a century ago. The country is waiting for young men, if in some way the boys of the land can be made to appreciate this fact the march of progress will show a steady forward stride and the nation will develop greatness with growth.

The man who votes for Governor La Follette has no right to denounce the man who votes for ex-Governor Scofield, as disloyal to the party and not a republican. It should be remembered that nearly half the delegates who were admitted to the gymnastium convention were opposed to the nomination of the governor for a third term and these men represent an anti-LaFollette constituency.

It is idle for the governor to talk about standing the men up to be counted who don't endorse him. The army is too large to be read out of the party by a stroke of the pen or wave of the hand. Many of these men were in the party before the governor was born.

Ex-Governor Scofield enjoys a record which will bear the closest inspection. He gave the state a business administration. No mistake will be made in voting for him in November.

Up in La Crosse county the democrats are having hard work to find a candidate for the assembly. They helped to nominate the governor and they propose to stand by him.

New York and Indiana will be the battle ground this year. Roosevelt will carry both states in spite of money and corporate opposition. The people are with him.

One-third of the democratic vote of the state will be for La Follette. Why shouldn't it?

The will of a state, central committee is the highest authority in the state.

If you don't like the law instruct the next legislature to amend it.

The legislature of 1898 is to blame for the late court decision.

If you want justice keep out of court.

The law and not the court was defective.

The court deals with law, not merit.

PRESS COMMENT.

Milwaukee Sentinel: Unfortunately for the La Follette ticket the voters of Wisconsin will not decline jurisdiction four weeks from next Tuesday.

Milwaukee News: It is suspected that the Hon. Isaac Stephenson is wondering whether he is a hero or a victim of another gold-brick transaction.

Stoughton Hub: Up in St. Croix county the republicans have nominated for the assembly a man named Beer. Even the democrats ought to be able to swallow that nomination.

Marquette Eagle-Star: The only trouble is that the Army is too small to hold one-fourth the people who will want to get near Uncle Joe Cannon.

Oaksh Northwestern: Considering the fact that Governor La Follette denied the jurisdiction of the supreme court, he may now feel a trifle bashful about accepting a verdict in his favor.

El Paso Herald: The first batch of 35 American students under the Rhodes bequest have started for England to become "hybrid products" in the fostering atmosphere of moss grown Oxford.

Delavan Enterprise: The stalwart contention at Madison is lost: Bob has carried the day. The supreme court has given the right to place the electors under the La Follette column. But by no means is the stalwart cause lost. There is still a light coming and much to fight for.

Evening Wisconsin: The republicans of Wisconsin, to a man, are for Roosevelt for president, and will vote for Roosevelt electors. Republicans will vote for republican members of congress. In regard to the La Follette state ticket the republican party is divided. Lincoln said that calling a lamb's tail his leg would not make it a leg, and there are thousands of republicans who will hold that calling the La Follette state ticket the republican ticket does not make it the republican ticket. They will vote as to them seems most likely to conserve and promote the principles of the republican party.

ROY CRALL TRIED TO END HIS LIFE

IN LIVERY HAY-LOFT AT SEVEN THIS MORNING.

ESPONDENCY WAS CAUSE

tributed by His Relatives and Friends—Bullet Penetrated Right Lung.

Despondency over the death of his wife and excessive use of intoxicants are ascribed as the causes which led Roy Crall to attempt to end his own existence at seven o'clock this morning. The young man has been associated with his father, Joshua Crall, in the livery business on East Milwaukee street. He went out with a hack shortly after four o'clock on Saturday morning. He was seen turning at five. Later on he was helping hitch up a horse and carelessly allowed the animal to step on one of the tulle. His father asked him why he could not be more careful and this led to a few words. At the conclusion of which Joshua Crall handed the son both of his pocket-books and told him to run the business himself—that he guessed he could make a living elsewhere.

Ayers Heard Shot
Afterwards everyone apparently left the stable excepting Frank Ayers who was caring for the horses in the rear. He had been at work some time when he heard a muffled report. He listened for a moment and then prepared to resume his labors, believing that one of the horses had struck a post sharply against one of the stall bars. A few moments later he was all attention again as there seemed to come to his ears sounds of groans issuing from above the stables.

With Two Revolvers
He sprang to the stairway, mounted to the hay-loft, and there among the bales he found Roy Crall propped upon his elbows, his limbs drawn in with pain, and two revolvers lying on either side of him. One of these was a thirty-eight calibre firearm and the other a thirty-two. No evidence of a wound was visible but Ayers immediately took to the situation and ran for help. Returning with assistance in a few minutes he removed the unfortunate man to the rooms below and summoned physicians. Dr. Farnsworth was the first to arrive on the scene and Dr. Judd soon followed. It was found upon examination that the bullet from the thirty-two revolver had passed through the right lung and lodged in the back just below the shoulder blade. Crall had evidently pressed both instruments to either side of his breast but the one on the left, which would have meant almost instant death, failed to carry its message.

Remained Conscious
The young man was conscious when the doctors arrived. He said to them that he was glad he did it and hoped to finish it. His pulse improved, however, as the morning wore on and at nine o'clock there were thought to be some chances for his recovery. A bullet through the lung is not necessarily fatal.

What Father Said
Joshua Crall in speaking of the unfortunate occurrence said: "He drank and neglected his business, seeming not to recover from the blow of his wife's death. I tried every way I knew to make him give it up. Sometimes I used good nature and tried to persuade him to think of his two little children who regarded him with a world of affection. At other times I was cranky. I am bitterly opposed to the use of intoxicants and have discharged the men whenever they used them to excess. The boy apparently could not get rid of his despondency. He told me once or twice that if ever missed him he would be found on his wife's grave. He used to visit the cemetery twice a week."

PARR EASILY WON WRESTLING MATCH

But Scott of Watertown, Proved a Problem at First—Parr to Return.

One of the finest wrestling exhibitions given in this part of the country for years was furnished at the Myers Grand theatre last evening when Jim Parr, the English champion, defeated the world's light-heavyweight champion, Scott of Watertown, three times in seventy-six minutes with fourteen minutes to spare. Scott was no easy antagonist. He twisted and spun on his head at the most inopportune moments when the Englishman seemed to have him to rights and Parr shook his head and smiled dubiously several times during each bout. The first throw required thirty-eight minutes; the second, twenty-five; and the third, thirteen.

But the Englishman was by far the stronger and more clever of the two. He used fancy holds and leg-work that were new to most of the spectators. At the conclusion of the matches he challenged Scott, or Beale of Marshfield, offering to throw either one three times in sixty minutes. Scott has accepted his challenge and the match will come off here on October 11. The events will be preceded by a fifteen minute exhibition match with John J. Luchland who acted as referee last night. There will also be a preliminary between two local wrestlers.

Mr. Parr left this morning for Rockford. He will meet Johnson on the 12th in the Forest city and "Farmer" Burns on the 14th.

ROBBERS LOOT A POST OFFICE

Mr. Horch the Scene of Activity of Thieves Last Night—Loss Not Known.

Word was received from Mr. Horch this morning that the post-office of that village was robbed by two thieves last night. The amount of the plunder received was not given. A large posse is in search of the fugitives. Mr. Horch is twenty-three miles west of Madison. It is near the Iowa county line and is situated in a very wild strip of country. It would be an easy thing for the robbers to escape into the hills around Blue Mounds and elude the posse until they could escape with safety.

WHITEHEAD HAS LARGE MEETING

Orfordville Meeting Is Full of Interest to the Republicans of This Section.

Senator Whitehead spoke at Orfordville last evening to a large and enthusiastic audience. The rain which came just before the meeting kept some away who would otherwise have attended, but as it was, the hall was full and nearly every chair was occupied by an interested, intelligent audience. Senator Whitehead spoke on Taxation. His address was not a personal attack as the Record-Examiner has stated. He referred directly to the senate Journal for confirmation of his statement. After the meeting several former La Follette leaders who had heard the Governor at Broadhead a week ago, came and personally asked questions relative to the issues at stake and went away from the meeting entirely satisfied. Next week Thursday Senator Whitehead speaks at Clinton.

SHERIFF APPELEY GOES TO CHICAGO

Will Aid in Running Down Eddie Faye the Much Wanted Jail Breaker and Robber.

Sheriff Appley has been summoned to Chicago to take part in the great man-hunt which is to be inaugurated to recapture Eddie Faye. The telegram came late last night from Inspector Stewart of the Post Office department, and the Sheriff replied immediately by leaving for the Windy city on the morning train. The Chicago police think that they have Faye cornered, and the sheriff, police officers, detectives and other who know him personally have all been summoned from all parts of the country to aid in the search. It is hoped he will be rounded up today or tonight as the police drag-net is slowly closing around him. His location is said to be known exactly but the police are working warily so as to be sure of their man this time. Chicago police scoff at the theory that Faye took part in the correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph. It is practically known now that Faye has been hiding in Chicago ever since his sensational escape from jail here last August. Sheriff Appley will be an important factor in the capture, as will other sheriffs who have this witty gentleman in their custody as one time or another and are thoroughly acquainted with his appearance.

SOCIETY.

The beautiful afternoon of Oct. 6th will long be remembered by about thirty of the relatives and friends of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Bleasdale, who gathered at their home in the town of Rock, it being the occasion of their tenth wedding anniversary. A delicious luncheon was served which was presided over by the maids of honor, Lillie Ellis, Ethel Goldsmith, Jennie Ellis, and Eleanor Douglass. Mrs. E. Richards, who was matron of honor, presided over a table laden with their original wedding cake, which was brought across the ocean from far away New Zealand, the former home of Mrs. Bleasdale. They are remembered by many useful presents. May they live to enjoy many ten-year milestones is the earnest wish of their many friends.

Mr. and Mrs. George Hockett have left for Patterson, N. J., where they will make their future home with Mr. Hockett's mother, George Hockett, Jr., will soon go.

State W. C. T. U. Convention Meets at Racine This Last Week.

The Woman's Christian Temperance union of Wisconsin closed at Racine yesterday one of the largest conventions of the kind ever held in the state, the thirty-first annual convention. The total membership in the state now is 3,044 with 399 honorary members, the young people's branch—the Loyal Temperance Legion—numbering 5,000. The W. C. T. U. in the United States has a membership of over 300,000 women, the largest organization of women in the world. The work is extended through fifty nations. The report of the board of directors showed the organization to be in a very flourishing condition throughout the state. There was proof that the women of the state have been active in fighting the liquor traffic and building up the society. On every hand there was indication that all of the officers of the national state and local were very enthusiastic and pleased with the great gains made throughout the whole world in this direction. Mrs. Mary C. Upham, the gifted wife of former Governor Upham of Marshfield, once more heads the organization as state president, and all the other officers were re-elected. Mrs. Ella Poorman, state superintendent of work among railroad men, and Mrs. Norman Huld, delegate from the local union, represented Janesville at the state convention. Hear Senator Spooner tonight.

COMES BACK TO FIGHT THE SUIT

Charles Thompson Returns From Dakota to Fight Divorce Proceedings.

Charles Thompson who left on the 18th of July for the harvest fields of North Dakota has returned to Janesville to investigate the animus of the divorce proceedings commenced against him by his wife, Gertrude Thompson, during his absence. It will be remembered that Mrs. Thompson, acting on the supposition that her husband had deserted her, removed all her furniture from her former apartment on South Main street and returned to reside with her mother, Mrs. Pleasant Thompson.

Thompson doesn't quite know what to make of the trend of events. He says that his wife was anxious that he should go to Dakota and earn more money and that she kissed him good-bye when he left. Sometime later she sent him a letter and a tiny photograph of herself. It was mailed on the 19th of August but owing to the fact that he was located some distance from Valley City, the nearest post-office, he did not get it until the third of September. When he replied he made a mistake and put the picture in the letter he mailed to her instead of the envelope of the missive, she had sent to him. He discovered his mistake soon after and sent to her to ask that she return the picture. This she refused to do.

Did Not Change Name
Thompson also avers that he assured her in the letter that he would be home in six weeks. The first intimation he had of the fact that things were not going to his liking was in a letter from Atty. Edward Carpenter, informing him that the suit for divorce had been commenced and asking him why he changed his name from Olsen to Thompson, intimating that there might be something wrong back of it. Thompson says in regard to this that his father's last name was Thompson and his first Olsen. When the Janesville man first came to this country and went to Minneapolis there were so many Olsens that he thought it wise to use his father's last name instead of the first, which his brother, who lives in Akron, Ohio, had adopted. Thompson is willing to forgive all and hopes his wife will come back to him.

NEW INDUSTRY FOR CLAM SHELLS

Janesville Pearl Button Factory Establishes Crusher Plants on the Mississippi.

The Janesville Pearl Button factory is erecting a three-ton crusher plant at Guttenberg, Iowa, to handle the clam shells that are left by the clam fishers and pearl hunters. The new plant is to be located on the Mississippi river, between Prairie du Chien and Dubuque on the town side of the stream. The company has had a plant in operation at Prairie du Chien for some time past but have now exhausted their supply of shells. They have one order alone for five hundred tons of crushed shells for a Chicago firm. Clam shells contain the same element of calcium carbonate that oyster shells contain and take the place of oyster shells in the west. E. J. Roessling is in charge of the new plant. At Guttenberg there are 5,000 tons of shells and at Prairie du Chien there were between fifteen hundred and three thousand, all of which have been cleaned up.

FAIR JAPAN AS IT REALLY IS

WORLD'S FAIR VISITORS ENJOY PAVILLION AND GARDENS.

KODAKERS ARE MUCH PLEASED

Can Take Dainty Pictures Galore—No Restrictions Are Made At All.

St. Louis, Oct. 5.—I think all the Japs at the fair must have been listening to the brilliantly colored parrot over at the pavilion of Honduras which does the honors as hostess of the place by welcoming all comers with a hospitable "Shut up!" This is her first and only English phrase learned in a week on American soil and she is so perfectly satisfied with the accomplishments that she makes no effort to add to her knowledge of English. She doesn't say it in a snooty or scolding manner. The exclamation comes at regular intervals, after which she closes her eyes in the apparent contentment of duty well done.

Surely "Shut up!" must be the motto of the busy little Japs. I imagine this motto is over the desk of every business man in Japan. I have not succeeded in getting any of those Japs to talk about anything but the things they have for sale and I am almost persuaded that some day they will be the greatest merchants in the world. While we were drinking our Formosa tea in one of the Japanese pavilions I noticed the little Japanese maids, kept hiding their faces behind fans. John thought they were trying to flirt with him but we found out afterwards they took his lunch-box for a camera. They are very shy when the camera flash comes around and yet they are snapped up oftener than anything else at the fair.

And that reminds me to say something I intended to say long ago. This exposition is a paradise for kodakers for more reasons than one. It has more beautiful vistas and more ornate architecture to delight the camera enthusiast, but more gratifying than anything else, the kodaker is not subjected to the annoyance of a fee for taking snap shots as he was at previous expositions. He enjoys the privilege of photographing anything on the grounds without charge or molestation.

The Japs have certainly utilized all the artistic landscape possibilities of this hill. They have converted it into a fairyland of pagodas, flower-beds, winding walks, artificial lakes and rustic bridges. Leaving the bamboo tea-house and following the main walk you reach the top of the hill where from a tall flag-pole flies the Imperial flag of Japan. The picture spread out before you is one of surpassing beauty illustrating the genius of the Japanese for artistic landscape gardening. In the center, miniature island is a summer house. Metal cranes and stone lanterns are seen, through the trees while the air is filled with fragrance with native Japanese flowers. The dwarf-like tree which is seen in every hard-land is called by the Japs "hibi." It resembles our Juniper tree and lives to a great age. One of them in these gardens being 346 years old. There is a peculiar porous stone under these trees in which it apparently sinks its roots which they call Ishi.

Near the top of the hill is a large wood and bamboo reception room which contains examples of Japanese costumes of the feudal days. There is a model Japanese house with bamboo shades and matting that looks cool and inviting, also the headquarters of the Japanese commission where Baron Matsuda receives visitors. The main pavilion is a reproduction of the "Shikuden," a palace at Tokio, and all are the work of Japanese artists brought from the far east.

NEW ACCEPTATION OF THE PICTURE HAT

The shaded velvet are among the choicest novelties in the autumn millinery, and a charming example is seen in this novel and picturesque shape. Somewhat on the flat order, there is but a very shallow headpiece, a sort of a Tam O'Shanter effect in the velvet shaded from a pale blue to a rich antracyte. The under brim is shirred in plain velvet of the deepest shade and applies in an area that make for color relief. The wide band gives the hat a very jaunty tilt at the left side and this is covered with a twist and a ribbon in black. From the center of the crown two long plumes in the pale colorings start, the thick and heavy tips curling under the brim and falling on the hair in the back.

SAFELY THROUGH MOTHERHOOD WITHOUT PAIN.

What a wonderful message of hope and escape from suffering these words carry in that woman who is dreading the hour that shall proclaim her Motherhood. Perhaps for the first time God has blessed her with what awe and mystery and fear she contemplates the coming event which even now is casting its shadow before the way of many painful discomforts! The hope held out in these words simply means that childbirth has been turned into an event of thanksgiving and joy, stripped of its agonies and dangers because of the learned skill of man.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

In the name of the remedy which means so much to the expectant mother, she can apply it herself and feel an improvement at once which but foretells the pain and suffering which it saves when childbirth takes place. The testimony of Mothers who have used it successfully will convince you; their words of praise are found in our book, "Motherhood." Send for it.

MARRIED UNDER DIFFICULTIES

Groom Obtains License in Wrong County, Necessitating Long Drive.
Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 8.—At 12 o'clock Thursday night, on a lonely country road at the edge of eastern McLean county, a unique marriage took place. Thomas Easterbrook of Downs obtained a license in this county to wed Miss Tossie King of Marshallfield, Champaign county. When the guests assembled at Marshallfield the officiating clergyman discovered that the license was issued here. It was then agreed that the couple, accompanied by the minister, drive ten miles until the McLean county line was reached. The couple returned to the waiting guests after the ceremony was performed.

THE POWER OF STEAM.

Many May See But It Takes Genius to Realize.
When James Watt saw the steam causing the kettle lid to jump up, and down he said "There must be power in that steam that it can lift such a weight."
There was.
Millen prior to him had seen the same phenomenon and regarded it as an unexplained mystery.
Recent scientific research has put its finger on the "cause" of Watt's "falling lid," and consequent discovery, and has unearthed a tiny worm which eats the life from the roots of human hair. Newborn's Herpicide destroys this germ and consequently restores the hair to its natural state.

YOU MAY BE CURED

544 Garfield Avenue, Chicago, Ill., October 9, 1902.
After doctoring for eleven months and taking forty-three bottles of medicine and finding no relief for leucorrhea resulting from irritation of a fallen womb I took Wine of Cardui and fourteen bottles cured me. This seems strange but it is the simple truth. Wine of Cardui helped me find it I began taking it and having heard it praised so highly by friends who had tried it I felt satisfied that it would help me, and it did. It cured me. Took every bit of ache, pain and headache, cramps and dragging down sensations away till I felt young, strong and happy once more. It is a wonderful medicine and a true friend to women. When I look back on the months of torture I find it seems like a hideous nightmare. Wine of Cardui will cure any woman I believe. I have more faith in it than all other medicines combined.

Francis Kingsley
Vice-Pres., Chicago Historical Club.

How can you refuse relief when you know you are growing worse day after day? Shooting pains, irregularity and bearing down pains make thousands of women miserable. Why drag through life never enjoying anything? Wine of Cardui has made over 1,500,000 weak and suffering women well and strong. Weak you go to your druggist today and secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui and begin to take it at once. Do "bad" and a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui will be yours. If you think special directions are needed in your case, address, giving symptoms, Ladies' Advisory Department, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

The Yellow Holly

By FERGUS HUME,
Author of "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," Etc.

Copyright, 1904, by G. W. Dillingham Company

Having just returned from the music hall, Lola wore a loose tea gown of scarlet trimmed with glittering jet. It was a bizarre garment, but the vivid color suited her dark face and southern looks. She was rather tall, very slender, and she moved with the dangerous grace of a pantheress. Her face was oval, sallow and thin, with ever changing expressions. She was never two minutes the same, but her prevailing mood was one of fierce intensity. The smoldering fire in her great black eyes blazed into passionate love as she swept forward to greet her visitor.

"My deliverer, my adored!" she cried in moderately good English and kissed his hand with burning lips.

George snatched it away. "Don't, Lola. You know I hate that sort of thing." And so saying he threw down his coat and hat on the sofa at the far end of the room.

"There, little friend," cried Lola, when he was seated comfortably by the fire and was puffing at a cigarette, "now, we must talk. Why have you not been? Oh, you wicked young boy!"

"I have been engaged," replied George.

"Engaged!" she repeated, with a flash of her wonderful eyes. "That is words for 'I don't want to come.'"

George laughed, shook his head and changed the subject. "Have you ever been in San Remo, in Italy?" he asked.

"Ah, baby! Have I been anywhere? All Italy I know—all Italy!"

"You know it better than Spain. Yet you are Spanish."

"I am whatever you desire, my George. Yes, I am of Spain—of Cadiz, where my parents sent off to their rule. They came to Italy, to Milan, and made money to live from wine. I was trained to the dance. They died, and I, my friend."

"You told me all this before," interrupted Brendon ruthlessly. "I ask if you have ever been to San Remo?"

"Why, yes, assuredly, and why not?" She looked at him with narrowing eyes as she put the question, blinking like a cat.

"There is no reason, only I was thinking," he paused.

"Oh, you think—of what?"

"Oh, something which does not concern you, Lola."

"All that is of you is to me," she responded. "I love you."

"Lola, be reasonable."

"Fascinating! I mock myself of your reason," she cried, snapping her fingers and speaking in quite a French way. "I leave reasons to your chummy English ladies. I—eh, but you know I am of the south. To you—to you, my adored preserver, do I give myself."

George grew angry. "If you talk like this, Lola, I shall go away."

"Ah, then, good night to you. Let it be said and never come back."

"That's grateful," said George quietly, and she was at his feet.

"Ah, but no! I am a bad woman. I am entirely all wicked. You are an angel of the good God. Dearest—my own!" She stretched adoring hands, and her eyes glittered like stars.

George reasoned with her. "Lola, do you wish me to be pleased with you?"

"Assuredly. And why not?"

"Then sit down and talk sensibly."

She sat down, or rather slung herself into the chair, with a whirl of scarlet draperies. "Decidedly I am a Christian. I go to mass, I confess—yes, I confess to the priest how I love you."

"Do you really love me, Lola? I was told that you wished me harm."

She started from her chair with a pained gesture.

"Who says it is Mars of the worst? Tell me who speaks that I may tear and tear, then burst out: "But I wish you no harm. Eh, will you believe that, my preserver?"

"I'll believe nothing if you will not tell me the truth," said Brendon, a little cruelly. "Come, Lola, admit that you paid Bawdsey to watch me."

"I did not pay—no, not one sou. He did it for love."

"Oh, indeed! So Bawdsey is in love with you?"

Lola threw back her head defiantly. "Yes, he is, and I care not one, two, three little trifles for him. Chup! He is old—he is red—he is one big fool, that I can twist and twist!"

"And you apparently have done so. Well, then, Lola, did you get him from a private inquiry office?"

"No, I did not so. He loved me, and sent me flowers—oh, many, many flowers—those roses." She pointed to a silver dish filled with roses. He has flowers from a friend in San Remo."

Brendon sat up with an eager look in his eyes. So Bawdsey knew some one in San Remo. Brendon began to think that there was some meaning in all these things and pined Lola with questions. She was sulky at first and would not answer. But Brendon knew how to manage her, and before the conclusion of the conversation he got the whole truth out of her.

"So Bawdsey knows San Remo, and he is fifty or over fifty years of age. He knows all the history of the place, I suppose."

"I know not—nothing do I know."

"Ah, that's a pity! Bawdsey could tell you some nice tales." He fixed a keen glance on her. "About some yellow holly, for instance."

Lola winced, for the shot had gone home. But she still held to her declaration of ignorance. "I know nothing—absolutely."

"But apparently this man knows a great deal. He is in love with you and must have told you much. Did he inform you of a certain murder which took place at San Remo?"

"Ah, baby! Why should he? I knew of all already."

"You? How did you know?"

"My father and my mother, they lived in San Remo when—oh, they did tell me all of that Englishman."

"Did they know who murdered him?" asked George, marveling at this unexpected discovery.

"No. No one knows anything."

"Was there no suspicion?"

"Not one suspicion. I know nothing," she repeated doggedly.

"It strikes me that you do. How did you and Bawdsey come to be talking of this matter?"

"We did not talk." Lola looked down at her foot as she told the lie and moved it restlessly.

George rose and took up his hat. Throwing his coat over his arm, he moved toward the door. "Good night, mademoiselle."

She sprang to her feet and flew after him. "No, no!" she cried in lively alarm. "You must not go, my dearest dear!"

"What is the use of my stopping when you will not show your gratitude toward me by telling the truth?"

"I will tell! I will tell! Sit down. The coat—you shall not go. I will say all. Ask what you will. Sit, my little cabbage—a wine in the glass—ah, yes—and a cigarette. Come, be good. Am I mademoiselle?"

"No," said George, smiling on her pleading face. "You are my friend Lola now that you are sensible."

"Ah, only friend!" she said sadly. "But I speak, yes?"

George began at once to question her lest the yielding mood should pass away. "You made the acquaintance of Bawdsey at the hall?"

Lola nodded. "He loved me; he sent me flowers. I learn that he looks after people, and I made him watch you. I told him your name."

"Did he know my name?" asked Brendon quickly.

"He knew everything—oh, yes—all!"

Brendon was taken aback. "All—what?" he asked, amazed.

"Why?" Lola twisted her fingers—"all what you would not tell to me, my dear. That your names is Vane, and—"

"Derrington! Did Bawdsey mention Lord Derrington?"

"Yes, oh, many times he speaks of him. I speak of San Remo. This—this Bawdsey ask me of the blue dome—of the holly?"

"Of the murder, in fact."

"It is quite so, my friend. Of the murder of your father."

"What?" George started from his seat. "Did he know that the man who was murdered at San Remo was my father?"

"Yes, and that it was difficult about the marriages."

"That also. He appears to know the whole story. And he mentioned Lord Derrington. That is how he comes to be acquainted with these facts. A spy—Derrington is employing him. And the man is boarding in Amelia square."

George struck his hands together. "By Jove, it's a conspiracy, and I never knew anything!"

"I do not wish you to have the marriages right, George," said Lola, with a pout. "If you are as what you are, then you will marry me. She will not be madame."

"Did Bawdsey tell you the name of the lady?"

"No. But he will tell. But she is a well born one, and I am of the gutter. But I love you—ah, yes, I love you!" She threw her arms round him. "Be still Brendon, and not milder, and I am yours."

"No, no!" George took her arms from his neck and spoke more soberly. "Lola, hold your tongue about what you have told me, and I'll see you again. If you speak, I see you no more."

"I will be silent," she said as Brendon put on his coat. "But you are cruel, wicked. You shall never be my lover, never!"

tenly, then burst out: "But I wish you no harm. Eh, will you believe that, my preserver?"

"I'll believe nothing if you will not tell me the truth," said Brendon, a little cruelly. "Come, Lola, admit that you paid Bawdsey to watch me."

"I did not pay—no, not one sou. He did it for love."

"Oh, indeed! So Bawdsey is in love with you?"

Lola threw back her head defiantly. "Yes, he is, and I care not one, two, three little trifles for him. Chup! He is old—he is red—he is one big fool, that I can twist and twist!"

Bad Stomachs AND Torpid Livers

RESPONSIBLE FOR NINETY-FIVE PER CENT. OF ALL DISEASES

"Seven Barks" Cures or No Pay

The cause of nearly every disease can be directly traced to clogged and inactive stomachs, livers or intestines. Biliousness, indigestion, gout, rheumatism, headaches, insomnia, kidney and bladder troubles, and all liver complaints, emanate from one of the digestive or drainage organs. These organs must be kept constantly in action to insure uninterrupted good health, and there is no remedy or corrective, so harmless and so certain as "Seven Barks."

There is no ailment originating from any of the organs of the digestive and drainage system, but what will readily succumb to the use of "Seven Barks," a purely vegetable preparation, put up on a noted German physician's original formula. It is not a patent medicine.

If any one with stomach, liver or kidney troubles will call at our store and get a bottle of "Seven Barks," take as directed—and if all the benefit one should expect is not derived, no charge will be made. We are not taking chances in making this offer, for we know the character of the remedy and we are satisfied it will do all that is claimed for it.

AMONG THE WORLD'S WORKERS

News Notes From Various Sources of Great Interest to the Workingman.

Efforts to bring out a working agreement between the plumbers' national union and that of the teams fitters has resulted in failure and the fight is being renewed. The plumbers claim that the steam fitters should be under their jurisdiction, and that, therefore, the Steam Fitters' Union must become part of the Plumbers' Union. The steam fitters, on the other hand, claim their trade distinct and separate from plumbing and further claim that, having their own organization, they can secure a much higher rate of wages, while, if they become part of the plumbers' association, they would experience a reduction in wages.

An appeal to the House of Lords will be made by the South Wales Miners' Federation against the verdict giving the Glamorgan Coal company judgment for £27,562 for losses claimed to be due by the action of the federation in declaring certain stop days, thus causing the men to break their contracts.

Five hundred Japanese laborers sent to Santa Rosalia, lower California, to work in the mines, have gone on strike because they consider the timbering unsafe. They will not return until the timbering is strengthened. The Japanese consul is on the ground looking after the interests of his countrymen.

T. V. Powderly is interested in the reorganization of the Knights of Labor. There are about 50,000 Knights of Labor, who are still unorganized in the United States. Mr. Powderly has been in correspondence with several of the officers of the old organization of Knights of Labor in different parts of the country, and they are eager to see the old body reorganized.

The trouble at Cripple Creek still continues.

There is danger of a strike of the miners of District 19, comprising East Tennessee and Southeastern Kentucky mines.
